
Tall tree team does it again

Posted by moss - 09/08/2006 11:13am

The amazing tall tree hunters have done it again with yet another "world's tallest tree" find, the second time this year:
New tallest tree candidate

-moss

=====

Posted by MarkF - 09/08/2006 05:54pm

Thanks for the "heads up" Moss. Koch and Sillett (two of the guys mentioned in the article) have published research that pretty well proves that the tallest trees are limited by water transport, and that the biggest coastal redwoods are pretty close to what the physics says is possible.

Now I wonder how big the trees could get on a planet with lower gravity...

=====