
Learning to climb in Ohio

Posted by Heisey - 07/05/2007 10:51am

Does anyone have contacts or information about taking a tree climbing class in Ohio? I live in north-east Ohio. Or even Western PA?

I just ordered the DVD for beginner climbers. Would that be enough to teach myself. I'm pretty "active" and not afraid to learn. 44 yrs. old.

Thanks.

=====

Newbie, also from NEO

Posted by rickygee - 07/05/2007 06:19pm

I just joined TCI and ordered the video. Maybe we could get together and assist one another.

=====

New Climbers Suggestions

Posted by Oldtimer - 07/06/2007 11:55am

Hello New Visitors and Tree Climbers. I suggest getting the Tree Climbers Companion book from one of the Arborist Suppliers and read it several times. The Video from Peter Jenkins is a great tool to see how things are put into practice. Read some of the old postings on this board and on the Tree Climbing Coalition site for more suggestions. If possible take a formal class or meet with fellow Rec. Climbers in PA. Be safe and enjoy climbing.

=====

Posted by JerseyGirl - 07/06/2007 08:11pm

i agree about the tree climbers companion - i have it available with me at most time, i refernce the knots.

google tree climber training, i know of three in the peach state. there might be others. also contact your local arborist groups they may offer training or at the least someone to chat with.

there is nothing that can replace training with an instructor.

enjoy the trees you climb

jz

=====

Tree Climbing in Ohio

Posted by JimK - 07/08/2007 10:52pm

Here's a website serving the tree climbing needs of southern Ohio.

Click here for Ohio tree climbing

I've been tree trekking around Columbus for a few years now. We could get together somewhere for a demonstration climb.

=====

Another newbie in Ohio

Posted by gropo56 - 08/22/2007 12:32pm

I'm sorry I haven't look at this in a while. I am also located in NE Ohio and am looking for some people to learn with. I hadn't heard of the instructors down in southern Ohio, but I might be willing to go that far. Heisey and RickyGee, contact me at fnardulli@gmail.com if you're interested in meeting up.

=====

Posted by JerseyGirl - 08/22/2007 02:06pm

there are a few climbers in O HI O that are resident on Treebuzz dot com, one is also new and was willing to share ideas with me - PM me and i can talk with him as to his location

enjoy the trees you climb , climb safe stay safe

=====

Posted by JimK - 09/09/2007 01:16am

There's a national park extending south of Cleveland. Remind me, the determination is that climbing is ok there?

Glad to see Ohio interested in climbing. I've been at it in Columbus for a few years. Hopefull, we all can connect.

=====