
Rendezvous drumming?

Posted by Wildhare - 08/11/2007 06:21pm

Anyone interested in a drumming circle at the rendezvous...on the ground or aloft?

=====

Posted by NickfromWI - 08/12/2007 12:15am

I'll bring the didge!

=====

Posted by Tom Dunlap - 08/12/2007 09:28am

Aloft would seem to be the most appropriate.

There should be plenty of sticks around...my head is hollow enough to make a good drum :D

=====

Posted by Wildhare - 08/12/2007 10:17am

I am new to drumming, but ever since i went to the first one ive thought how cool it would be to do this IN a tree, or under a tree, FOR a tree and WITH a tree! Ive started a collection of misc sound making items for people to take aloft...should this opportunity come about.

Bring 'em if ya got em, grab one if ya dont!

Didge....VERY cool! Tom...put some beans in there (your head) and shake it!

=====

Posted by moss - 08/13/2007 01:14am

Always up for drumming, don't have one to bring. Follow the lead of woodpeckers and find a resonant dead branch to hammer on.

-moss

=====

Tree to Tree messaging?

Posted by Treeman - 08/16/2007 10:04pm

Great idea!! Sound carries great distances while in the treetop. I suggest differet percussion instruments be brought along. I'll bring a few myself. I used to be an avid drummer back in the 60's. Always wanted to do a tree to tree sound beat with other percussionists.

=====

Posted by JimK - 09/09/2007 01:25am

Just to close out this thread. Things got out of hand. Apparently a wheel barrel was introduced into the drumming circle. Later a rap edition of the theme song from "Gilligan's Island" broke out, "Sit right back and hear a tale....a tale of a fateful trip...schhhht...tt...schhhht...tt..."

=====
Posted by moss - 09/09/2007 09:48am

Originally posted by JimK

Just to close out this thread. Things got out of hand. Apparently a wheel barrel was introduced into the drumming circle.

I have no recollection of the alleged abuse of the wheelbarrel whatsoever....

It did have kind of an interesting tin can gong sound to it. Two wheel barrels at once was even better.

I facilitated a climb for a professional percussionist yesterday. He was so happy with his climb that he offered lessons in exchange. I hope to be more than ready for next years 'vous, bring your hands ready to drum or your legs ready to dance! Or retreat to the cabin tavern and enjoy at a safe distance.

Thanks to Becki for bringing her nice drums to the 07 'vous!

-moss

Posted by Wildhare - 09/09/2007 12:55pm

I thought it was ABSOLUTELY WONDERFUL! I just wish the drumming would have gone on longer! I hope we have started a tradition and i cant wait till next year....What a GREAT bunch of people!!!

Posted by Ponderosa - 09/09/2007 01:08pm

The drumming was great, but how about those massages? Wow.

Posted by moss - 09/09/2007 11:02pm

Originally posted by Ponderosa

The drumming was great, but how about those massages? Wow.

Agreed. WildHare set up by the fire and worked magic with her subtle technique. We were most fortunate.

-moss

Posted by Wildhare - 09/09/2007 11:10pm

It is an honor...to be allowed to touch the people...and trees in my world. Thank YOU all.

Becki

Posted by NickfromWI - 09/10/2007 01:25pm

It just dawned on me that wildhare = becki!!!!

Okay, getting a massage while looking at the stars (I saw a shooting stars) on a cool evening next to a campfire...AWESOME!!!!

love
nick
