
BARC climb 3/10

Posted by moss - 03/25/2008 05:57pm

Here's a recent climb consisting of 3 arborist climbers and myself. Very windy day, made throwing more fun than usual. We mostly settled for lower throws and advanced the ropes the old-fashioned by climbing. Several traverses were made from tree to tree. It's always humbling and instructive for me to climb with folks who do it every day for a living. And they were very open to enjoying being in the tree, no roaring saw and fumes, just good climbing, beautiful trees and blue sky. More photos

Terry up in a beech, you can see the branches bending up in the white pine in the background from wind.

http://farm3.static.flickr.com/2015/2324542180_7f6fffdcd2.jpg

Oldirty (soon to be living in Alaska) working a limb walk with gusto

http://farm4.static.flickr.com/3294/2323697501_1595624919.jpg?v=0

-moss

=====