
MCA

Posted by xtremetrees - 04/18/2008 11:37pm

Mass Certified Arborist. <http://www.massarbor.org/certification/index.html>

Its given me the idea for GCA.(Georgia Certified Arborist)

What do yall think.?

=====

Re:Georgia certified Anything.

Posted by oldtimer - 04/20/2008 07:26pm

Would not touch that topic with a ten foot pole here.!:laugh:

You may discuss that at the "Arborist" Site: www.treebuzz.com

=====

Re:MCA

Posted by jerseygirl - 04/24/2008 08:03pm

GCA - that is already a group - Georgia Canoe Association

have boat will climb trees - NOPE

=====

Re:MCA

Posted by moss - 05/01/2008 05:49pm

xtremetrees wrote:

Mass Certified Arborist. <http://www.massarbor.org/certification/index.html>

Its given me the idea for GCA.(Georgia Certified Arborist)

What do yall think.?

You should talk to Treeman about it, he's very active in the Georgia arborist scene. Maybe repost in the Tree Work forum. It seems the ISA doesn't like the state-based arborist certifications very much, tends to conflict with their "C.A." brand. The funny thing is, the MCA pre-dates the ISA and from what I understand the MCA is a more difficult exam than the ISA CA exam.

I guess the question is, is there a need for a Georgia arborist certification? Anyway, maybe the Tree Work section is the place to talk about it.

-moss

=====