
Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by nickfromwi - 05/11/2008 02:14am

Today I tried a different way to anchor the end of my rope to control my swing back to the plumb line below my TIP. You can see the vid at

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7ROV7y7pptw>

love
nick

Re:Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by Baker - 05/11/2008 08:32am

Are you sure you linked to the right video?

Re:Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by nickfromwi - 05/11/2008 10:20am

HAH! I went and fixed it

For posterity's sake, here is the link I accidently posted originally

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PPMcZyPOVJQ&NR=1>

:silly:

love
nick

Re:Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by Baker - 05/11/2008 09:26pm

I climbed a new tree today, now named Claire, and tried the new anchor idea. It slipped the first time, but after seeing the error of my ways it worked pretty well. I don't think I would use this very much, but it's always nice to have the new knowledge, just in case.

Thanks for the education.

Re:Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by treeweasel - 07/26/2008 08:07am

Nick,

Man, thanks for the tears . . . that Avril Lavigne vid really got to me. Of course, big boys don't cry and all that. . . .

Re:Quick Release Rap Anchor Vid

Posted by treeweasel - 07/26/2008 08:18am

As far as the video climbing instruction, good job!

Next time could you possibly sing the instructions in Avril Lavigne's voice??

Just kidding. I liked how you used that temporary hitch to work yourself out under the anchor. I used to know a knot called a "thief's knot" that would involve doubling the end rope in order to tie, but by yanking on one end it would release. Of course, the simplicity of your "pincher" is its beauty.

I was wondering how you got over to the limb in the first place from your anchor?

thanks,

=====